

5.29.1869

day six

Proff climbed the hill on the east side of the canyon and measured it with a barometer; height above the river 1140 feet, not perpendicular. There is a cliff on the west side that is fifty feet higher, and perpendicular. The rock is hard, fieryred sandstone. It has been named Flaming Gorge.